Prayer: A Conversation Between Friends

Perhaps the best image for prayer is a conversation between friends. What should this ongoing conversation, this deepening friendship, look like? Let me offer four suggestions.

First, the most important thing with regard to any friendship is that we take the time. Thomas Merton, the greatest spiritual teacher of the 20th century, was once asked, "What is the best thing I can do to improve my prayer life?" His simple answer: "Take the time." If you claimed that a certain person was your best friend but had to admit that you spend almost no time with him, people would laugh at you. But a lot of people will say that God is the most important person in their life and yet spend next to no time speaking or listening to him. Don't say blithely, "I find God in all things." Reserve time for God-both when you feel like it and when you don't. Perhaps it is in the morning; Perhaps it's late at night. Maybe it's in the car (which can be a very good place to pray -your own little monastic cell); maybe it's an hour or even a half hour before the Blessed Sacrament. In a way, it doesn't matter, as long as it is substantial and intentional time with God. Under this rubric, we might even speak of prayer as wasting time with God.

When you speak to God during this time of prayer you also must speak with honesty. What would happen to a human relationship in which honesty did not hold sway? It would quickly grow cold and superficial. How do you feel when a friend is keeping important things from you, dissembling, or covering up? Far too often in prayer, we tell God what we think he wants to hear, presenting ourselves as pious; things that seem messy, dirty, or unkept in our lives, we sweep under the carpet.

But this is so much nonsense! Take a good, prayerful look at Psalm 139 sometime: "O Lord, you have searched me and known me. Tell the Lord what's happening in your life- the good, the bad, and the ugly. Tell him what's frightening you and what's depressing you. Confess your sins before him in the manner of David and Peter and tell him how guilty you feel when you sin. There is a lot of talk of tears in the Bible; In fact, the saints speak of the "gift of tears." If anything shows that you're not just going through the motions, this is it.

Speak your anger to him- especially your anger at him. I love the story of a woman whose husband was in the hospital for many months, dying of a terrible illness. There was a statue of the Blessed Mother outside of the hospital, and one day, the wife became so frustrated that, upon leaving the hospital, she began to pick up rocks and dirt and throw them at the statue. Security ran out to stop her, but one of the sisters held them back, saying, "No- don't stop her. She's praying." Consider the number of figures in the Bible who regularly expressed this sort of frustration, confusion, and anger to God: the Psalmist, Abraham, Moses, Jeremiah, and above all, Job.

Excerpt from An Introduction to Prayer By Bishop Robert Barron

5th Sunday of Easter

"I give you a new commandment: love one another. As I have loved you, so you also should love one another." (John 13:34)

"As I have loved you," this is the hard part – Jesus's love is unconditional; our love usually comes with strings attached. It is easy to love someone when they love you back. But it takes mercy and compassion to love someone when you feel unappreciated, feel used or feel like your opinion doesn't matter. It takes courage and the grace of God to "love my neighbor" when they may be someone you don't like, someone you don't know, or someone that doesn't look like you.
